FARMER PINNED TO WALL BY CAR DIES.

Abbeville, Ala., Aug. 11.—A. L. Holland, 74, prominent Henry county planter, was crushed to death late Monday afternoon at Newville when an automobile leaped upon the sidewalk and pinned him against a brick wall. He had been sitting on the sidewalk with his back against the wall. Mr. Holland was rushed to a Dothan hospital where efforts to save his life proved futile. The automobile, which was owned by W. R. Brannon, had just been started up by the owner when it crashed up on the sidewalk. Mr. Brannon also is a prominent farmer and is a member of the board of education. It was believed that Brannon got the pedals confused and accidentally started the car forward instead of throwing it in reverse.

Mr. Holland was a native of this section and took a prominent part in its affairs. He leaves a wife and two children.

BIGGEST DRY RAID DIXIE EVER SAW KNOWN ON IN LOUISIANA.

New Orleans, Aug. 11.—In the midst of the biggest prohibition drive in the United States which went forward simultaneously throughout New Orleans, St. Bernard and Jefferson parishes and the Gulf coast Tuesday, Judge Andrew M. Sager, special assistant to United States Attorney General, Sargent sent here to take charge of prosecutions, declared all cases would be pushed through the federal court within one month.

Judge Sager made this statement Monday afternoon shortly before noon. By this time $510,000 worth of liquor had been seized here, in St. Bernard Parish and on the Mississippi coast.

More than a score raids had already been successfully accomplished in New Orleans and the mobilized agents, sent here from several parts of the country by order of Washington prohibition headquarters, expected to complete 40 more.

To try the cases Judge William L. Grubb, now sitting in the Northern district of Alabama, has been ordered to the local court on Sept. 1. Judge Sager said cases arising out of the present raids will take precedence over all other federal court cases and swift penalties will be dealt out.

At noon 23 persons had been arrested and many more served with affidavits.

E. C. Yellowley, chief of the general prohibition agents in Washington, in active charge of the raid, was assisted in directing the augmented forces by O. D. Jackson, prohibition director for Louisiana; M. H. Daly, director for Mississippi; and Arthur N. Sager, of the prohibition department in Washington.

Acting on information gathered by the local enforcement officers over a period of several months, the army of dry agents in chartered taxicabs swooped down on soft drink stands and places where liquor is said to be distributed. Residences, some of them in fashionable neighborhoods, yielded great quantities of liquor, and several arrests were made, according to Mr. Jackson.

Planning Six Months.
"We have been planning these raids for six months," said Mr. Jackson, "and our agents have been checking places to find where liquor was stored and from which it was being distributed. We had orders six months ago to dry up New Orleans, recognized as the wettest spot in America. Trained agents from other cities and states were gradually concentrated in New Orleans for the raids started this morning."

Coming into New Orleans from every direction, the dry agents spent Monday night in conferences with Mr. Yellowley and Director Jackson, mapping out the campaign against violators of the liquor law. Armed with search warrants obtained against places where liquor was known to be sold or stored, 20 squads set out at sunrise in a coastwise sweep, declared by prohibition directors to be the most sweeping series of raids ever conducted.

Looking Ahead---

How fast would your town grow, if every home were occupied and no new ones were being built?

How fast would Alabama grow, if every cent of available capital was being used to operate existing industries and no new capital was being spent to build new industries.

How many new industries—seeking hydro-electric power—would establish themselves here—if no provision were in prospect to meet not only their present—but their future power requirements?

To meet present demands and to care for future growth, both in population and industry, Alabama Power Company is building dams and extending transmission lines as fast as thousands of men can work. Electric energy must be available the moment it is needed, not after it is needed.

The Power Company has faith in Alabama's future—12,000 Alabamians and thousands of others who invest their earnings in Power Company securities, also have faith in our State. This faith made it possible for the Company to invest $9,000,000 in 1924.

What other business concern invested that much last year in Alabama?

500 Farmers and Visitors Attended Second Annual Coffee County Farm Bureau Meeting Held at Calvary Church Last Thursday

The largest gathering of farmers under the Farm Bureau banner ever assembled since its organization met at 10:30 Thursday morning at Calvary Church, midway between New Brockton and Enterprise, in Coffee County's 2nd Annual meeting.

After the devotional exercises conducted by Bro. Johnson, pastor of Calvary Church, Hon. T. T. Brooks, the old war horse of this community gave a most rousing welcome to the visiting farmers and friends from all parts of the county. Professor M. J. Funchess, Director of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn spoke for about 40 minutes on the subject "Coffee County's Great Agricultural Need—A Better Soil."

He stressed the importance of correct mixtures of commercial fertilizers for crop production, but stated that all the commercial fertilizers in the world would not build a fertile soil. Taking the results of the best farmers of the South as a guide, Prof. Funchess urged the growing of a winter legume such as hairy vetch which will build up our wornout soils during the idle time of the year, enabling the owner of a field to turn a vetch crop under in the spring preparatory to planting corn, the equivalent of 400 lbs nitrate of soda per acre, at a cost of seed not exceeding $2.25 per acre. A sack of vetch seed costing $23.00, and seeding 10 to 12 acres, will add as much nitrate to the soil as 10 tons of nitrate of soda costing at least 110.00.

Prof. Funchess paid a high tribute to the natural soils of Coffee County, stating that it was his privilege in 1909 to assist in the government soil survey mapping of the county, and Coffee County had three or four outstanding types of soil of which we should all feel proud, and manifest this pride by showing a sack of vetch seed this fall on every farm.

Prof. Funchess stated that second only in importance to a rich soil, the greatest need of Coffee County Agriculture was a better system of markets, and urged that every farmer should feel it his patriotic duty to join hands in the mighty farm bureau movement, pool his cotton and co-operate to obtain fertilizers more cheaply—to the end that prosperity might crown each household, and want and need be forever banished from this goodly land.

Prof. Funchess' talk was well received, for immediately after, a proposition was made as to how many would sow vetch this fall, and more than half indicated that they would join hands in an effort to bring a solid car of seed to the county.

The next feature of the program was the Annual Address by the President of Coffee County Farm Bureau, W. C. Braswell, who electrified his hearers with the forcefulness and earnestness of his logic, eloquence, reasoning, and power of conviction which was driven home to his hearers by his fervent appeal to the farmers to stick to their guns and fight the righteous battle against speculation and foreign domination of Southern Agriculture which has existed since the Civil War. Dr. Braswell's speech was a real address, and one which would appeal to any intelligent body of people in this country. He showed how from the beginning of our nation Southern farmers held the reins of leadership in all activities, and since ours was the only pure Anglo-Saxon blood in the nation, it was up to the Southern people to still assume and vigorously Kinston, Ala., Aug. 18.—After stealing tools from a garage next door burglars early Monday morning dynamited the Kinston postoffice, stealing about $300 in cash and stamps and then made their get-away in a Ford sedan stolen from M. Holley. Mr. Holley missed his car this morning.

Citizens living near the postoffice were attracted by the noise made by the explosives used in opening the safe, but the burglars had escaped when they reached the scene. John Moseley, Chief of Police at New Brockton Kills Self Accidentally

One of the saddest deaths to occur in this section for some time was that of Mr. John Moseley, which occurred at New Brockton last Monday morning, when the accidental firing of a shot gun brought his life to an untimely end.

Mr. Moseley arose early Monday morning and went to the point where the town's source of water supply is located, his purpose being to set the machinery in motion for the day's work. On leaving home he took his shot gun, stating that possibly he might be able to get some squirrels. Mrs. Moseley, after having awoken breakfast for him for some time, sent her brother out to locate him. He was found sitting in his car, the gun having supposedly been discharged just as he was in the act of starting his car to return home. The load from the gun penetrated his left side striking his heart. When found he had been dead for sometime.

Mr. Moseley had been police man at New Brockton for some time and the people give him credit for being the best officer the town ever had.

Deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moseley, of near Victoria, and besides his parents he is survived by a widow, one little daughter and three young sons, two brothers and several sisters.

Interment occurred at New Brockton Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. M. T. Moore preached the funeral sermon and the Masons had charge of the body at the grave. He was also a member of the Knights of Pythias.
